Weekly Synopsis 8

July 23 – Today I worked on PR for the 5K race. I worked to get the race on as many event calendars as possible. I contacted area radio and TV stations and then I also contacted city calendars.

July 24 – Today I continued to work on the calendar event postings and targeted track clubs and other running clubs in the area.

This week was my last week at the American Cancer Society. I have finished with 127 hours. This last two days were very simple. I just had to work at my own pace getting our event put on different community calendars. Then I just filled out paperwork to finish my internship on their end. I have really enjoyed my time here and it has been a great learning experience. I am glad this is where I got to do my internship.
